DETAILED ACTION

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 1-7 recite a method for computing an output data based on another set of input data, and merely involving in data manipulations. Since the claim fail to recited any step that would result in a physical transformation, or a practical application, or require a specific computer to implement the claimed method, the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-5,7-12,14,15,17-19,21 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Dravida et al (6,195,780).

Art Unit: 2124

As per claims 1 and 7-12, Dravida et al discloses in figure 3, a generation of transform including a first transform LUT (T4), a second transform LUT (T3), a third transform LUT (T2), an XOR array (340) a first data XOR (32), a second data XOR (324), a shift register (330), and an output register (350).

As per claims 2-4, Dravida et al inherently discloses the selecting and moving range of numbers by a number of bit (r) and the dividing by eqs. [8] & [16].

As per claim 5, Dravida et al discloses in figure 3 the claimed limitations (also see col.8, line 54).

As per claims 14,15,17-19,21 and 22, the claimed first lookup table corresponds to LUTs (T4 and T3), and the claimed second lookup table corresponds to LUTs (T2 and T1).

5. Claims 13,16 and 20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
